GRANGE MEETING

Mattapoisett Grange held its bi-monthly meeting last Thursday night with the worthy master, Susan Bence, presiding.

A fine report of the sunshine work was given by the chairman, Mrs. Etta Kellish. Christmas cards were sent to the members living out of town, and the shut-in members were remembered with Christmas gifts. Boxes were sent to the Grange boys who are in the service, Randy Randall and Richard Rawcliffe.

A report of the Junior Grange Christmas party was also given.

It is with regret that the officers of Mattapoisett Grange will not be able to fill the chairs at New Bedford Grange Monday night, January 16th, for their anniversary, as has been the custom for many years.

During the business meeting, plans were made to have a workshop day Saturday, January 14th. Members are to be at the hall at 2 P.M. with pails and cleaning cloths.

Articles were brought in for the grocery basket to be awarded January 19th at the anniversary meeting. More articles are needed.

Mary Alcobia received the lecturer's march prize. The lecturer's program was presented by Doris Fearing and the youth committee.

A humorous reading was given by Edward Alves, a radio advice from 3 channels was given by Corrine Lawrence, Christine Bence and Doris Fearing.

A very impressive New Year candle lighting service was presented with Doris Fearing as narrator. She told the story that was prepared and found in an old Kansas State Grange bulletin and written by Myra Beebe, a former Kansas State Lecturer. The story is as follows: "We belong to the Grange because we enjoy doing for others. We believe in Service. Through Grange work we enjoy the companionship of neighbors and friends, but too often we take for granted the blessings of these associations. Among these blessings are Love, Friendship, Cooperation, Neighborliness and appreciation. As we light the candles we will remind you of the blessings we enjoy through our associations with others."

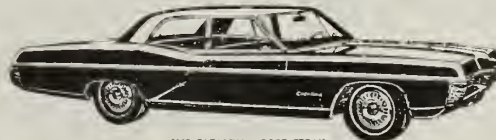

The candles were lit by Edward Alves for Love, Corrine Lawrence, friendship; Rebecca Day, cooperation; Christine Bence, neighborliness and Susan Bence, appreciation.

A new Year's prayer by Doris Fearing completed the program.

Plans for the 70th anniversary are about completed. Members were reminded of the necessity of the sale of tickets for the catered supper by William Smith, who distributed tickets. A complete turkey dinner will be served. Reservations must be in by January 14th, this Saturday. You may contact Lemuel LeBaron

Two festive Yule events were held at the club house in December -- the annual Christmas party for Rochester children and the Christmas dinner and party for members and their guests.

Mrs. Church was chairman for the children's party which this year was attended by 125 small fry. She was assisted by Mmes. Greenwood Hartley, Jr., Albert Jenney, Irving Ellis and C. Condit Peirce. The young guests were entertained by magician Armand J. Landry of New Bedford, Santa presented gifts to all and refreshments were served.

Mrs. Margaret Benner was in charge of arrangements for the members' Christmas dinner, assisted by Mrs. Raymond King. They served a delicious smorgasbord to eighteen members River and Leonard's Pond on Mary's Pond Road in Rochester. In the foreground is the river with a small footbridge crossing in front of the dam and showing the herring weir. This is the last of the many mills that have stood at this Sippican mill site by Leonard's Pond which was quite an active center in years past. At one time in 1821 near this point there was also an iron works which included a forge, a trip hammer shop and a foundry. Older residents can remember when the grist mill was in active use during World War I, also a blacksmith shop and a school.

Since 1945, the Hartley Scholarship Award has benefited 33 Rochester high school graduates. The 1966 recipients were Miss Heidi Hartley of Hartley Road, now attending the University of Massachusetts; Miss Karen Chase of Rounseville Road, Stonehill College; Robert Lawrence of Hartley Road, Southeastern Massachusetts Technological Institute; and Wayne Lawrence, East Coast Aero Technical School.

There are degrees of involvement. This writer prefers to watch whatever comes into view from the comfort of a warm kitchen. On December 26th, the more ardent and adventuresome members of this fraternity swarmed over fields, woods, and swamps for the annual Audubon Society bird count. The Christmas tally is one portion of the Society's invaluable contribution to conservation. As Rachel Carson emphasized in her important work, "The Silent Spring", birds are an integral part of nature's balance. Personally preferring the beauty of finches and cardinals or the merry antics of the ubiquitous chickadees, we are apt to be ungracious to the platoons of starlings which sweep clean our feeders. Before reaching for the rifle, however, remember that starlings reward us in other seasons by being one of the few species equipped (and willing) to eat Japanese Beetle grubs. Even the noisy blue-jay serves his purpose: depending upon the

The yearly evaluation of species and their numbers brings to light population changes and the possible effects on the delicate bal-

Had such information been available several decades ago, measures to protect the Heath Hen - once indigenous to this area - could have been instigated in time to prevent its extinction. vate the beginning bird fancier. It is a happy reflection on human nature that it is instinctive for us to help small and seemingly defenseless creatures. And a good thing, for it is not the nest robbers, cats or severe weather which takes the heaviest toll: it is lack of food. The problem can only increase as our megropolis unceasingly encroaches on natural feeding areas. A second inspiration is the possibility of luring a wider variety of species to the feeder ... which leads to proffering a wider variety of food. (The hobby is now becoming expensive.) By now the first cardinal has appeared in all its incredible and incomparable beauty, and a towhee unable to make the trip south has become a dependent. And let's be honest -- even the selfless act of feeding feathered waifs is not without its spirit of competition ... luring the more colorful species away from the neighbors is fair. (Not discussed, but fair.)

The greatest joy for all birdwatchers, no matter how experienced, is the sight of a rare or particularly beautiful bird. Columbus or Sherlock Holmes couldn't have known a more exciting or rewarding moment. Past years have brought a few surprises to this backyard, but probably the most momentous was a golden-crowned sparrow - common on the West Coast, but seen fewer than 20 times in eastern North America; a bird termed by Peterson in his "Field Guide to the Birds" as an "accidental", the "rarest of rarities", a bird which shouldn't occur in the region at all. And even though the cardinals have been with us for four years chickadees, a flicker, a brown thrasher, and

- of course - starlings and bluejays. The tufted titmouse, last winter's favorite because of his rarity, delicate beauty, and gay attitude, has not returned.

Whether you are a kitchen-window watcher or the noble sort who seeks out birds in their own environment, we are hoping you might find an area listing of what-has-been-seen-where informative and interesting. We'll need your help. It would be appreciated, however, if the lists or news flashes could be mailed to the Presto, Box 184, or dropped off at the office at Mechanic Street, rather than telephoned.
Who knows? Perhaps if we unite we could convince the powers that be that what the Great Society really needs is a tax exemption for bird food!.

It is hoped that this Field Guide to Bird-Watchers will help you in identifying the species - and please remember to be kind to them.
